Solemn but Simple Ceremonies Over the Remains of Chief Justice M. R. Waite.

The Hall of the House of Representa tives Crowded by the Dignitaries of the Nation.

|Washington special.] Washington special.

The state funeral of the late Chief Justice Waite took place in the hall of the House of Representatives on Wednesday. The services were the most impressive that have been seen in Washington since the obsequies of the late Senator Logan, and were witnessed by a large crowd of dignitaries. The President and all the members of his Cabinet had seats near the casket. Mrs. Cleycland and the ladies of the Cabinet were in the executive gallery. The Justices of the Supreme and local courts, members of the diplomatic corps, and of the Senate and House, all attended in a body, while the galleries and floor were crowded with distinguished visitors. The Senate met at 11:30 a.m. After prayer by the Chaplain the Clerk of the House appeared and delivered a message from that body amnouncing that it was now in session and rendy to receive the Senate.

The presiding officer (Mr. Ingalle) said "Pursuant to order, the Senate will now proceed to the hall of the House of Representatives to attend the funeral of the Chief Justice," Thereupon the procession of Senators took up its march to the hall of the House of Representatives.

The remains of the late Chief Justice arrived at the Capitol at 11:30, accompanied by his relatives, the Associate Justices and their families, the officiating cleraymen, seven in number, officers of the Supreme Court, representatives of different bodies of which the deceased was a member, and numerous friends. There were no services at the house, and the arrangements were of the simplest and quietest character. The fortege gracesied to the Capitol by way of Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. traveling, both for himself and his family. He was a man of social traite, and he was punctilious in his social observances. He appeared regularly at the White House receptions, and, though dignitied, he was not pompous, and he had a friendly smile for those he talked to. He was unassuming and approachable, and he was a man who attracted the attention of strangers wherever he appeared. Straight, broad-shouldered, and stout, with a big chest, he was rather under than over medium height. His big, dark iron-gray head was fastened to his shoulders by a rather short neck, and his dark-complexioned, grave face had a thick growth of wiry dark beard, mixed with gray, about its lower part. His eyes were large, black, and full of feeling and thought. His forehead was broad and its black eyebrows well marked.

Captain Boyton, the Famous Swimmer, Takes a Swim in Lake Michigan.

Getting Lost in an Ice Field, he Has a Narrow Escape from Death.

Capt. Paul Boyton, the celebrated swimmer, who lives in Chicago, went to sea on Tuesday morning in his inflated rabber sult, and he came near not getting lack. The Captain has grown heavy during, the winter, and to reduce his flesh twenty-five pounds has been taking little pulls out into the lake. These are the points in his story as he furnished it. Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock he left Fullerton avenue for a swim to South Chicago and return, and met with the most thrilling adventure of his life, in which he battled for hours with a great ice-floe, was carried many miles out into the lake, stripped of his navigating instruments, and lost for fifteen hours in the cold, bleak waste of drifting ice, hanging clouds, and stragcarried many mines out into the fact, stripped of his navigating instruments, and lost for fifteen hours in the cold, bleak waste of drifting ice, hanging clouds, and straggling ducks and galls. From 7 o'clock in the morning until midnight the Captain was without rood or drink, and the chill of the icy waters had driven, him to the desperate resert of hard work all that time to keep up a vigorous circulation, so that he would not chill and perish in the lake. At midnight, when he was rescued at the crib, his vituitly was almost gone. Standards were applied and the daring navigator put to bed.

A telephone message was sent to the police that the Captain was saved, and by them taken to his little family—a wife and son—who were distracted by his long absence, and supposed he had perished. He had premised them to return ut 10 o'clock in the morning, as he had been doing. Mrs. Boyton let that hour pass without uneasiness, but at noon she began to worry. At 6 o'clock she urged her father. Mr. C. C. Connelly, to get a tug and go in search of her husband's rescue, she was willing to concede that his luck had not forsaken him. Capt. Boyton was in bed when a Tribune reporter called at his home in the evening. He was exhausted, the reaction from his desperate excluence of the day before having made him weak and sick. WASHINGTON LETTER

From Our Regular Correspondent.1

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23, '68.

The candidate of the republican pary this party this year will undoubted y be Senator William B. Allison, of lowa. He is undoubtedly the strong est man we can nominate. He has the confidence of all classes. He is not identified with any of the factional disputes. He is gaining strength every day. Such was the language of Rep resentative Payson, of Illinois, when asked who he thought would be the republican nominee for president this

It cannot be denied that Senato Allison is a very strong man, strong with all branches of the party and if it be possible for any one man to command the entire Blaine following, Alli son is that man. Besides he is nearly the only man mentioned for the nomi nation without being immediately an tagonized by one or more of the other aspirants for the honor of the nomina tion. They are all friendly to Mr. Al lison, and his nomination would caus fewer heart-burnings and less ill feeling among the various candidates and their friends than any other so fa mentioned.

These facts are being recognized by thoughtful republicans and the natu ral consequeces has been a large ac ession of strength to Mr. Allison and he is undoubtedly nearer the nomina tion to-day than any other candidate But an important question is whethe Mr. Allison will allow the use of his name or not. It is a fact well known to a number of prominent republicans that Mr. Allison would have been nominated in 1880, instead of the late Gen. Garfield, had he not positively forbidden the use of his name. It is generally believed that he would accept the nomination this year, but he Steinway & Sons', has not said so.

The Ways and Means committee of the House have practically completed Hallett & Davis'. the consideration of the Mills tariff Blaine put in namination a citizens bill, that is the democratic majority of that committee have done so, for the republican minority have not been allowed a chance to take any part in its consideration. Everything was cut and dried before the full committee knew anything about it. The bill is substantially the same as when first submitted, and is likely to be reported ed to the House before this letter is in type. But it will never pass the House

The Gas Business in Berlin.

The city of Berlin, Germany, makes her own gas and solls it to the con-sumer at a comparatively very low rate. But, in spite of the low price, rate. But, in spite of the low price, the gas business, according to the report just published by the municipality for the twelve months 1888-1, yields considerably more than $1,000,000 a year to the municipal treasury. And that profit is realized after supplying all the streets and squares of the city with light by means of cither gas or electricity or oil.

Nothing Serious.
